

Success in the global economy

The future of business in the age of networks

With Ross Dawson, Strategy consultant and futurist

The rapid development of a globalised, intensely connected world has powerful implications for every aspect of society, work, and business. New communication technologies and the rise of social networks are shifting business relationships and how work is done. Changes in customers' attitudes and expectations mean that traditional approaches to business often no longer work. All organisations need to understand the impact on their industries, and how to respond to both emerging challenges and massive new opportunities.

At this breakfast you will:

- LEARN how the emergence of global networks is changing business
- UNDERSTAND the opportunities created by the next generation of technology
- LEARN how to leverage personal and business networks
- DISCOVER how to develop world-class capabilities
- DEVELOP business strategies for success in a global economy
